Bosque Farms Police Receive Technology Grant

Chief Greg Jones announced that his department recently received a Law Enforcement Technology Grant for $1,448.00 from the Administrative Office of the District Attorneys in Santa Fe. The grant requires the money to be used to purchase equipment in the investigation of crimes against women.

Jones said his department competed for the grant money with many other state, county and local law enforcement agencies and was selected by a review committee made up of criminal justice and domestic violence experts.

“The money will allow us to purchase two high quality cameras that will be used by our officers in the investigation of crimes against women, such as domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault and stalking” Jones said.

Jones said he wanted to thank the selection committee for choosing his agency to receive this much needed funding. “We’ll be able to take better photographs in the field that will ultimately help in the prosecution of these cases” he said.
